7 State utility assistance programs

13 Utility-specific assistance programs
Dealing with a mounting utility bill or shut-off notice can be scary, especially during a pandemic when electricity, water and gas are essential for learning or working from home. In the spring, when people were ordered to stay at home to prevent the spread of the coronavirus, all Ohio utilities stopped disconnecting service for customers who lost their jobs or were working fewer hours and couldn’t pay. Starting in July, those moratoriums started to be lifted. The last moratoriums – Cleveland Public Power and the Cleveland Water Department – are set to end on Dec. 1.

Now, a lot of people are seeking help with overdue bills and disconnection notices. Navigating payment plans, financial assistance programs and emergency funds can be frustrating. Plus, many community service agencies that sign up for these programs are closed to the public, and most applications must be completed all online or over the phone. Advocates at these agencies say it’s a good idea to get your documents ready when you call for help. Make sure to keep things like your utilities bills, your recent paychecks, and any documentation of a loss of job or proof of unemployment.

If you are unsure if you qualify, you can call United Way’s 211 helpline (some counties, like Cuyahoga County, have their own) and navigators can answer specific questions about which program might be a good fit. If you have trouble getting assistance during the pandemic or tips that might help others, let us know. Take our survey here. LOCAL AGENCIES IN EACH COUNTY HELP CUSTOMERS SIGN UP FOR THESE PROGRAMS LISTED BELOW, AND MAKE SURE THEY QUALIFY. YOU CAN FIND EACH AGENCY LISTED HERE. KEEP IN MIND THAT MOST AGENCIES WILL BE REQUIRING YOU TO APPLY ONLINE OR OVER THE PHONE.
How does PIPP work?
Customers who qualify for PIPP pay 6% of their monthly income for gas and 6% for electricity. If a home is heated by electricity the customer pays 10% of their monthly income for electricity, a minimum of $10.

Who is eligible?
Ohioans who rent or own their homes and who make less than 150% of federal poverty guidelines, which for a family of four would be $3,275 a month or less. (See other household sizes here.) Customers must receive their gas or electric from private utilities, not public utilities like Cleveland Public Power.

What paperwork do you need?
Proof of income for the last 30 days for people who live in the homes, except for minors.

Pandemic exceptions: Customers currently on PIPP who fail to submit documents that verify their income still qualifies won’t be removed until at least January. However, a customer can be dropped from the program if their payments are not current on the “anniversary date” of enrollment in the program, which is listed on their bill.

Customers who make full payments on-time every month for 24 months can have their total balance eliminated. Customers enrolled in the program have to prove their income once a year and be current on all payments on the “anniversary date” on which they signed up. Customers who don’t report a change of income—like making more money—who don’t verify their correct income once a year or who miss payment can be dropped from the program and owe their full balance.

- Customers who want to start a new service can choose to be charged $175 for a security deposit. Any amount higher than that can go on the next bill.
- Customers who are eligible for the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) can use that program to pay the $175. For example, a family of four could make up to $45,850 and be eligible. Check eligibility here.
PRC (PREVENTION, RETENTION AND CONTINGENCY):

Parents, caregivers, and expectant mothers can apply once a year for short-term emergency needs, including utility bills. Must first apply for other help available in the community. COVID-19-related relief is only for rent and utilities.
